

Privacy Policy

Nautilus Neurosciences, Inc. is committed to protecting your privacy when you visit our Website, so we want you to know what information we collect when you visit our Website, how we use that information, and how you can update it (“Privacy Policy”). We reserve the right to append or otherwise modify this Privacy Policy at any time, re-visit this page occasionally to check for updates.

Information We Collect

We collect various types of information from our Website visitors so we can adjust our site to meet our users' needs and expectations. Some of this information is collected automatically through cookies and other information is collected if you decide to share information about yourself and your family so we can better keep you informed about our products and other information that may relate to your health.

Information Collected Automatically

The types of information your browser or Internet session automatically sends us each time you visit Website, which we automatically collect, includes:

- Your browser.
- Your computer's operating system.
- Your navigation path, i.e., the URLs of where you come to our site from, which of our pages you visit, and where you go as you leave.
- Your IP address.

This and other information lets us see how users are finding our Website, and it tells us which pages are visited the most often so we can make our Websites more useful.

Information You Provide to Us

In addition to the information automatically collected by your browser, we also collect information that you provide to us when you request information from our Website.

Our Website provides users the opportunity to request information regarding various pharmaceutical products and educational materials. These information request pages require users to provide us with contact information (name, address, phone number, email address, gender, age, etc.).

How We Use This Information

We collect this information that you provide, and may use it to make your future requests from our Website easier by pre-populating contact forms with the information that you have provided. We do not share your information with any third-parties.

We use the information we automatically collect to help us better plan our Website to meet your Internet needs. Information you provide to us is used for marketing purposes, and may result in follow-up communications.

Your Rights and Our Obligations

Nautilus Neurosciences, Inc. respects the privacy of users visiting our sites. We may use directory information that we have collected to send you information about products and services, or updates and other information we think may be of interest to you. If you tell us that you do not wish to have this information used as a basis for further contact with you, we will respect your wishes. Please contact us to request your name and address be removed from our lists. If you do not want to receive our e-mail marketing, please submit a request to have your e-mail address removed by emailing: info@nautilusneurosciences.com.

Legal Protections and Law Enforcement

We may disclose information about our users, including your personal information, in the event we are required to respond to subpoenas, court orders, legal process or other valid law enforcement measures; to comply with a legal obligation; at the request of governmental authorities conducting an investigation; to verify or enforce compliance with the policies governing the Websites and applicable laws; or to protect the legal rights, interests, or safety of the Websites, our users or others. We may also use device identifiers to identify users, and may do so in cooperation with copyright owners, internet service providers or law enforcement agencies in our discretion. Such disclosures may be carried out without notice to you.

Our Security Measures

We follow generally accepted industry standards to protect the personal information submitted to us, both during transmission and once we receive it. No method of transmission over the Internet, or method of electronic storage, is 100% secure, however. Therefore, while we strive to use commercially acceptable means to protect your personal information, we cannot guarantee its absolute security.

Why We Use "Cookies"

When you visit some of our sites, we use cookies to keep track of your information. This small piece of program code resides on your computer and stores your contact information for all of our request information sites. We do this so you are not required to re-enter your contact information as you move from one site to another. You can generally opt out of the use of cookies by having your browser disable cookies or warn you before accepting a cookie. Look for the cookie options in your browser in the Options or Preferences menu. However, please be aware that some areas of the Website may not provide you with an acceptable user experience if you have disabled the use of cookies.

Log Files

Like most standard website servers we use log files. This includes Internet protocol (IP) addresses, browser type, Internet service provider (ISP), referring/exit pages, platform type, date/time stamp, and number of clicks to analyze trends, administer the site, track user's movement in the aggregate, and gather broad demographic information for aggregate use. IP addresses are not linked to personally identifiable information.

Clear Gifs

We may employ a software technology called clear gifs that help us better manage content on our site by informing us what content is effective. Clear gifs are tiny graphics with a unique identifier, similar in function to cookies, and are used to discern the online movements of users. The main difference between the two is that clear gifs are invisible on the page and are much smaller, about the size of the period at the end of this sentence. Clear gifs are not tied to users' personally identifiable information. Clear Gifs can "work with" existing cookies on a computer if they are both from the same site or advertising company. That means, for example, that if a person visited "www.companyX.com", which uses an advertising company's clear gif, the website or advertising company would match the clear gif's identifier and the advertising company's cookie ID number, to show the past online behavior for that computer. This collected information would then be given to the advertising company or site.

Community Forums or other Public Forums

Our Website may feature community areas where users with certain medical conditions can share information or where users can post questions for experts to answer. Such community areas are open to the public and should not be considered private.

Any information you shared in any online community area (including Personally Identifiable and Personal Health Information) is by design open to the public and is not private. You should think carefully before posting any Personally Identifiable or Personal Health Information in any public forum. What you post can be seen, disclosed to or collected by third parties and may be used by others in ways we cannot control or predict. As with any public forum on any site, the information you post may also show up in third-party search engines like Google, Yahoo, MSN, Bing etc.

Links From Our Site To Other Sites

Our Web site may contain links to other web sites external to our site. When you access these external websites, the providers of the sites will have access to certain information about you. Nautilus Neuroscience, Inc. is not responsible for the privacy practices or the content of any websites which we do not directly control.

Notification of Changes

If we decide to change our privacy policy, we will post those changes to this privacy statement, the homepage, or other places we deem appropriate so our users are always aware of what information we collect, how we use it, and under what circumstances we disclose it.

Protection of Children

We do not accept personally identifiable information online from children under the age of thirteen (13) and we do not knowingly accept personally identifiable information from children under the age of thirteen (13). If you are under 13 please do not use our Website. If we discover a minor under thirteen (13) has submitted information to our Website, we will delete this information as soon as possible.